This Memorable Year

It begins the same way every year. Toward the end of August, members of the fall athletic teams return for training camps . . . faculty, staff and student leaders begin preparing for freshman orientation . . . the bookstore receives its annual delivery of texts . . . laboratories are made ready . . . dormitory rooms are cleaned and aired . . . the registrar and business office staff work late to complete preparations . . . maintenance personnel hurry to finish their long lists of summer projects. There is a sense of expectation and excitement as returning students arrive, embrace friends, meet with advisors and begin classes.

But every year doesn't turn out the same. Some years are special. That's the way we felt about 1989-90. The achievements of our students and faculty, the progress made by Lebanon Valley College and the growing support of alumni and friends made this academic year memorable in many ways.

- Opening enrollment reached the highest level in a decade.
- The college added its first graduate program and brought other new strengths to the curriculum.
- A renaissance was begun of campus building and grounds.
- Contributions to the college increased 30 percent.
- The college acquired important new scientific and computer equipment.
- Students captured several highly competitive national honors and fellowships.
- Ten of the college's intercollegiate sports teams ended their seasons with winning records.

ENROLLMENT RISES

Despite the unfavorable demographic projections facing colleges in the 1990s, at Lebanon Valley we were fortunate to open the 1989-90 academic year with 994 students — the highest full-time equivalent enrollment achieved by the college in more than a decade.

We are pleased that a more aggressive marketing effort has brought Lebanon Valley's outstanding academic program to the attention of a wider potential student audience, resulting in a 18.5 percent increase in applications for 1990-91. We cannot, however, be complacent. The number of high school graduates has been declining for several years and will fall especially sharply this year and next.

Faced with those demographic realities, even the most highly selective private colleges will experience shortfalls in enrollments. In addition to working to maintain enrollments, private colleges also must contend with the increasing disparity between the perceived cost of attending private and public institutions, and a changing level of federal commitment to assuring higher educational opportunities for our young men and women. The most successful institutions will be those confident of their future, with caring and committed faculty and staff, well-managed resources, attractive and efficient facilities, and well-defined programs of superior quality.

ACADEMIC PROGRESS

A first concern of this administration is for the continuing strength and progress of the academic program. To that end, Lebanon Valley improved faculty salaries during the period as part of a three-year effort to provide equitable compensation to ongoing faculty and to enable the college to be competitive in the recruiting of new faculty.

One indicator of academic strength is the recognition of faculty and student achievements by others. During the year, more than 25 faculty were invited to publish articles, present papers to professional societies or were elected or honored by their peer organizations.

Students continued to receive national honors and fellowships. Matt Vera, a chemistry major, was named a Fulbright Scholar, the ninth Lebanon Valley student in the past 14 years to receive this award. Melanie Fleek, a biochemistry major, was awarded both a Hughes Foundation Fellowship (only 60 of 1400 applicants received the award) and a National Science Foundation Fellowship. In partnership with Professor Dale Erskine, junior biology major Kristen Curran received a Burroughs Wellcome Fellowship for biological research.

One way the college is becoming more focused internationally is through offering courses in Japanese. Koyumi Ito, from Japan, will teach this year on campus, thanks to the Hokkaido Foundation of Tokyo.

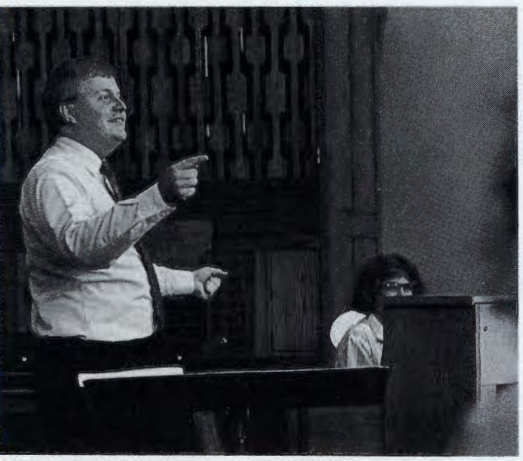

The college instituted an interdisciplinary Master's of Business Administration program in September 1989. This unusual program combines liberal arts and general education coursework with career preparation in business administration. The new MBA was instantly popular and enrollment had more than doubled by the end of the academic year.

Lebanon Valley continues to develop a more global outlook for its students and their curricula. Thus the Department of Foreign Languages is introducing the study of Japanese in the fall of 1990. Koyumi Ito, a native of Japan who is also fluent in English, will spend the entire year at Lebanon Valley. Her presence here was made possible by a grant from the Hokkaido Foundation of Tokyo. The college will also host Blazej Kruppik, a visiting professor from the Marie Curie University in Lublin, Poland. Thomas J. Liu, a native of Taiwan, has joined the college as assistant professor of mathematical sciences. He will teach computer science and applied mathematics courses.

To encourage study abroad, Lebanon Valley joined Allegheny and Gettysburg colleges to create and staff a foreign study program in Cologne, Germany. Arrangements have also been made to participate in a Thai-American program to attract Thai students wishing to study in the United States.

Cooperative agreements are an important and cost-efficient way to expand educational offerings of two or more institutions. In that spirit, the college has arranged a course exchange program with the Pennsylvania School of Art and Design. To facilitate the transfer of its students to Lebanon Valley, the college has also signed an articulation agreement with that school, and has signed a similar agreement with the Harrisburg Area Community College, a two-year institution with three campuses.

With a talented and nurturing faculty and outstanding facilities, music has long been a strength of Lebanon Valley. Dr. Mark Mecham, new chair of the Music Department, plans to build on those strengths.

In addition to our traditional strengths in science and mathematics, music has long been a major department at the college. After an intensive national search, we are pleased to welcome Dr. Mark Mecham as the new chair of the Music Department. Professor Mecham comes to us from Southern Utah State College.

PLANT AND EQUIPMENT

Substantial progress was made on a campus renewal project during the year.

A $2 million first-phase renovation to Lynch Memorial Hall was completed to house management, mathematics and computer science, computer services and intercollegiate athletic support facilities. The management center will be named in honor of Emmett C. Roop '04, whose trust awarded a grant of $124,763 toward the construction of that facility, and the Center for Mathematical Sciences will be named to honor Dr. William H. Lodge, whose estate provided $150,000 in construction funds.

A $365,000 project was begun to renovate and expand Laughlin Hall on Main Street for the college's advancement offices, including development, college relations, publications and alumni programs. The year's end also saw work begun on a plan to completely redo the academic quadrangle by providing new lighting, landscaping, drainage systems and walkways.

When the renewal projects are completed in 1990-91, nearly one-third of our physical plant will be new or refurbished.

During the year, a $200,000 superconducting multinuclear Fourier transformer nuclear magnetic resonance spectrometer was purchased for Chemistry. In the library, a $48,000 CD ROM automated catalog was ordered to replace the old card catalog. And administrative systems purchased a DEC VAX model 6310 computer and accompanying software.

Some $345,000 in telecommunications equipment and wiring was purchased and installed during the summer to connect 400 dorm rooms for voice and future simultaneous data transmission and cable TV. As the year ended, the freshman biology laboratory was being completely re-equipped.

The college last year also installed a computer-controlled energy conservation system that has already resulted in a savings of approximately $120,000. The system, installed by Cogenex, a Boston firm, monitors the temperature in all major buildings. It lowers the heat and air conditioning when buildings are unoccupied, thus saving on electrical and gas consumption.

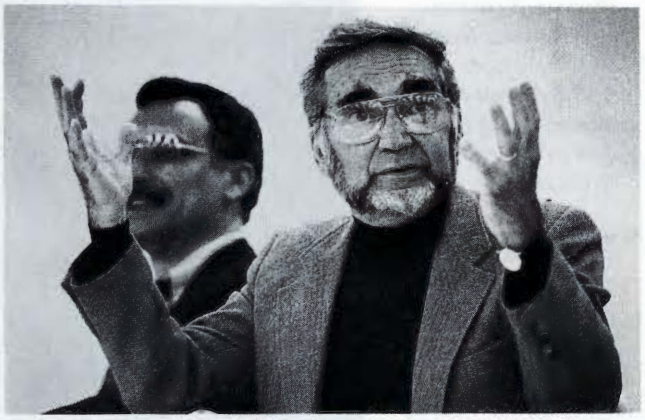

GIVING TO LEBANON VALLEY

As detailed elsewhere in this report, overall giving to the college rose during the 1989-90 year to $2,505,881, an increase of 30.7 percent. This includes $703,154 in unrestricted annual gifts, enabling Lebanon Valley to meet the goal for year two of the five-year Josiah W. and Bessie H. Kline Foundation Challenge.

In September 1989, The Kresge Foundation, in recognition of the college's outstanding science programs, awarded a $150,000 Science Initiative Challenge Grant. Lebanon Valley, competing with 61 colleges and universities, was the smallest of 25 selected for the award. The Kresge Challenge required that $750,000 for science equipment and endowment be raised by December 1, 1990. By the end of June, the Kresge Challenge was virtually completed.

Also in June, the Whitaker Foundation awarded the college a $300,000 grant to support the second-phase renovations of the upper floors of the Administration Building into a Center for the Study of Humanities.

Author Philip Hallie discussed "Ethics and Evil" as part of a new series of symposia. Each year, the college will offer a symposium on an interdisciplinary topic to extend learning beyond the walls of the classroom.

Congratulations and thanks to Advancement Chairman Charles W. Wolfe '44, and Annual Giving Chairman Darwin G. Glick '58 and to all our trustees, alumni and other friends for their support and work on behalf of the college.

ORGANIZATIONAL NOTES

In October 1989, after a year's study, the Board of Trustees adopted new bylaws. The changes included reducing the number of voting trustees from 55 to 32. All of the remaining 30 trustees, with the exception of the president and the student representative, are now elected at large. The new bylaws placed greater responsibility for the on-going work of the board with the Executive, Finance, Facilities, Advancement, and Nominating committees. The Nominating Committee is charged with the responsibility of assuring that the composition of the Board of Trustees continues to reflect the traditional constituencies of the college. The reforms authorized by the board are expected to be implemented fully by spring 1991.

The close of the academic year also marked the retirements of four members of the faculty who together had served the college for a total of 118 years. In recognition of their long and dedicated years of service, the trustees accorded emeritus status to Dr. Madelyn J. Albrecht, associate professor of education; Mr. William H. Fairlamb, professor of music; Dr. Pierce A. Getz, professor of music; and Mr. Glenn H. Woods, associate professor of English.

Another long-time Lebanon Valley College affiliation of nearly 50 years passed a milestone in June with the retirement of Dr. George R. "Rinso" Marquette '48, vice president for student affairs and dean of students. Rinso's impact on our college has been extraordinary. As vice president, emeritus, he has promised us that he will continue to serve in an advisory capacity and as a member of the Fulbright Committee. In May, the trustees honored Rinso at a special dinner attended by more than 200 alumni, colleagues and friends.

With Rinso's retirement, the academic, faculty and student administrative functions have been consolidated under Dr. William J. McGill, Jr., vice president and dean of the college. Dr. McGill will be supported by a Dean's Council composed of senior academic and student affairs officers.

In other major personnel moves, Dr. Howard L. Applegate was named secretary of the college last October. Dr. Robert E. Hamilton was designated as vice president, administration. Deborah R. Fullam was named controller and subsequently elected by the trustees as college treasurer. Karen D. Best joined the college as our new registrar. Judy L. Pehrson was named director of college relations and editor of The Valley. In June, Mary N. Eshelman, secretary to five presidents and assistant secretary of the Board of Trustees, retired from her offices. We salute her for her many contributions to college life. Diane Wenger now serves as administrative assistant to the president.

CO-CURRICULAR ACTIVITIES

Many concerts, recitals, plays, lectures, exhibits and cultural events enlivened the campus during the 1989-90 year.

In October, the internationally acclaimed jazz violinist Jeorg Wiedmasser presented a concert in Lutz Hall. December's traditional "Christmas at the Valley" again drew a full house at the chapel. In February the College Jazz Band gave a concert honoring and featuring the renowned jazz clarinetist, alumnus Walt Levinsky '51.

February also brought William W. Adams, president and CEO of Armstrong World Industries, to campus to receive the college's 11th Founders Day Award and the Doctor of Humane Letters degree. In his speech, "Foundations for a New World," he told Lebanon Valley students that they would have an important role in shaping the new, interdependent world of the 21st Century: "This is a place from which you can move the world. You offer values, the lodestone of individual initiative and judgment. You offer . . . the leadership of being quietly but definitely out front in emphasizing the important qualities of life and living."

A new campus-wide series was inaugurated in April with a symposium on "Ethics and Evil." Led by author Philip Hallie of Wesleyan University, the symposium panel included J. Willard O'Brien of Villanova, Robert Proctor of the New School for Social Research and Richard Gabriel of St. Anselm's College. Panelists and audience were invited to consider and discuss the moral issues of murder and human relations as affected by wartime exigencies. The college plans to sponsor symposia on other interdisciplinary topics on an annual basis as a means of further extending the intellectual life of the campus beyond the formal classroom.

The 20th Spring Arts Festival played during a bright April weekend, and was a rousing success. Several thousand visitors enjoyed its exhibitors, crafts, entertainments and performances. The weekend included the premier of an original play, "Mr. Emerson and Henry," by Associate Dean Arthur Ford '58. It is rumored the roles of Emerson and Thoreau were performed by the dean and the president of the college.

During June, the college hosted a reunion of Fulbright Scholars who were forced out of China following the 1989 pro-democracy demonstrations and Tiananmen Square massacre. Associate Dean Ford, one of the Fulbrighters whose China assignment was cut short, organized the meeting, which attracted nationwide interest. The Fulbrighters held discussion sessions and presented papers recording their memories of their China experiences. They concluded their campus stay with a moving tribute marking the first anniversary of the Tiananmen Square massacre and remembering friends and students who sacrificed their lives in the uprising.

The college's athletic teams turned in a sterling year, especially the football (6-4) and basketball (17-9) teams. The basketball team was the ECAC Southern Division winner. A new spirit seems to have infused all LVC sports teams, with most playing to a winning season this past year.

The new Edward H. Arnold Sports Center, construction of an outdoor all-weather track and renovation of intercollegiate support facilities in Lynch Memorial are markedly improving the college's ability to provide students with adequate athletic and recreational opportunities.

FINANCIAL INFORMATION

The college continued on a firm financial footing in 1989-1990. Income for the year ending June 30 rose to a new level of $15,447,539, permitting the trustees to authorize several important improvements in the college's financial operations. Debt reserves were increased, the practice of deferring summer program expenses was ended and a voluntary early retirement program for faculty was offered and fully funded. With these $402,801 in optional expenditures, total expenditures and manditory transfers were $15,443,139.

Endowment showed encouraging growth during the year. After allowing for income distribution of $558,624 to current operations, the market value of general endowments and annuities and life income funds at the June 30 closing stood at $11,865,012, an increase of 12 percent over the period a year earlier.

President Synodinos and Chairman Reinhart admire the foyer of the newly renovated Lynch Memorial Hall (its exterior is pictured on the cover.)

STRATEGIC PLANNING

To assure that Lebanon Valley is well-prepared for the years ahead, during the fall 1990 semester the college enters a formal strategic planning process. A planning retreat to include trustees and representatives from the faculty, students, alumni, and staff will initiate the process. Following the retreat, a task force will be formed and charged with engaging the broader community in discussion and reflection on a set of strategic initiatives. By February 1991, the task force's report recommending priorities for consideration by the trustees will be presented and shared widely with the college community.

Lebanon Valley has accomplished much in the past several years. Progress is almost always the result of some individual or group initiative and commitment. And so, the balance of this report is devoted to recognizing the efforts of those good college friends —alumni, parents, individuals, businesses, and other organizations—whose gifts of treasure and time have sustained and advanced Lebanon Valley College. Truly these friends provide the resources enabling this institution to attain new levels of educational achievement.

We thank you one and all for your generosity and your leadership.

A New Spirit

The 1989-90 year was one of stimulating growth and change for Lebanon Valley College, especially in the advancement program. Voluntary giving—$2.5 million from 4,075 donors—increased 30 percent over the previous year.

This impressive achievement, through which our students are afforded a distinctive educational experience, is really a vote of confidence from those thousands of alumni, parents, students, businesses and other organizations and friends of Lebanon Valley College.

In this banner year, two accomplishments stand out. Under the leadership of Darwin G. Glick '58, the Annual Fund totaled $703,000, thereby reaching the second-year goal of the five-year Kline Foundation Challenge. The Kresge Foundation, under its Science Initiatives Challenge, called on the college to complete a $900,000 program in science equipment and endowment. We are grateful to Dr. Elizabeth K. Weisburger '44, who chaired the Kresge Challenge, which succeeded some five months ahead of schedule.

But the year's record of achievement in giving is all the more notable considering the many internal changes that took place in the advancement program.

We welcomed to the advancement staff Monica Kline '88 as director of alumni programs, and said farewell to Mary Jean Bishop '84. Paul Brubaker became the college's first director of planned giving in August, and in November Judy Pehrson was named the first director of college relations (public relations, internal communication, sports and public information, publications and public events). Matt Hugg, who coordinated the successful 125th Anniversary Campaign, took up a new assignment as the first director of corporate and foundation relations.

If this were not enough, during the year the advancement staff vacated Laughlin Hall for what was to become nearly a year of major renovation and construction. Now returned to new and larger space, the staff will have better facilities from which to work even more efficiently and productively.

These pages deserve careful reading, for within these lists, statistics and photographs you will find, as I did, a new spirit of forward direction. To the good friends listed here, a hearty "thank you." Your fine help assures that a Lebanon Valley education is among the best.

Charles W. Wolfe '44
Trustee and Advancement Chairman

The pages of this report "deserve careful reading," notes Charles W. Wolfe, for they testify to a "new spirit of forward direction."

International students contribute to the diverse environment the college seeks to create.

A Vital Resource

Providing the finest educational opportunity possible for our students is our mission at Lebanon Valley College. Annual giving helps provide the resources needed to fulfill that mission. For the second year in a row, alumni and other friends, through their annual giving commitments, enabled the college to meet the Kline Foundation Challenge. This five-year challenge requires the college to increase annual giving in order to earn additional resources from the Josiah W. and Bessie H. Kline Foundation of Harrisburg.

Since tuition covers only about 75 percent of the cost of educating our students, income from the Annual Fund provides a vital portion of the current operating budget. Supported items include: student financial aid, faculty salaries, both intercollegiate and intramural athletics, religious programs, lectureships, concerts and campus maintenance.

Outstanding annual giving accomplishments during 1989-90 include:

- a record unrestricted total of $703,154.
- membership in donor clubs grew by nearly 20 percent.

Their gifts constitute three-quarters of the annual giving total. These individuals and the level of their gift support are recognized in the listings that follow.

We offer sincere appreciation from the entire college family to all the good friends of Lebanon Valley College who have helped to make 1989-90 another banner year.

SENIOR CLASS GIFTS PROGRAM A SUCCESS

Congratulations to the Class of 1990 for its participation in the new Senior Class Gift Program for Annual Giving. Under the capable leadership of Bill Dietz and Michelle Grube, the class pledged a total of $1,725 for Annual Giving during the next three years, beginning with 1990-91.

Some 47 percent of the class participated, a performance that will provide a great challenge to all other alumni (average participation in Annual Giving for all other classes for 1988-89 was 27 percent).

Assisting Bill and Michelle were team captains Kevin Dempsey, Robert Andrew, Brian Engle, Ben Deardorff and Toni Salam. Also helping were Dwayne Nichols, Scott Richardson, Chris Rissinger, Sherry Scovell, Steve Trapnell, Mary Catherine Wilson, Ed Wirth, Jeff Wolff, Tina Clymer, Angie Davis, Jim Dillman, Maria Fenty and Christopher Frye.

Alumni Association President Betty Hungerford was extremely pleased with the success of this newest class of the Alumni Association. "I am encouraged by their show of leadership and support of their alma mater. Obviously the Class of 1990 understands the importance of supporting The Valley through Annual Giving. They value their Lebanon Valley College experience, and this is a way for them to ensure continued excellence at the college," Mrs. Hungerford said.
